1,500 BABIES

The Evening World Fund Kind-Hearted Man Pro-Sends Its Fourth Excursion to New Dorp.

To-morrow's the day for 1,500 babies and their mothers to enjoy ten hours of real health-giving life away from the teeming tenements. The Even-ing World's Sick Hables' Fund is going to send its fourth excursion on the

Of course we understand that all the bachelors who have tog hearts don't possess pocketbooks big enough to help the sick bables on a large scale, but their donations are just as gratefully received, and where the sincere sympathy for suffering children goes along with a contribution the sender may rest assured that not only the tiny recipient of his sid, but the mothers and the Evening World, too, are appreciative.

Bachelors who are mopping their brows and complaining of the hot weather should stop a minute and consider those paic gasping little bables are in the crowded tenement districts where not even a faint oreath of air stire the stagmant atmosphere.

Now is the time when the bachelors can come to the front, and their charity will be most effective.

Sea Breeze means more than you can imagine. Just give these poor little sufferers a chance. One glance into a swettering west side tenement, and there isn't a bachelor in New York who wouldn't open his pocketbook and be glad to be taxed.

In addition to the $100 bachelor tax we have another interesting contribution of just one hundredth the amount item of just one hundredth the amount for little where the store were strung up.

Last night Miss Hogan, who has a patient out at Bay Shore, came into town to spend the evening. She met her sweetheart at Graham avenue and her sweetheart at Graham avenue and Meelter street. He wanted to get married at once, but Miss Hogan preferred to wait until they had more money saved up.

Then Austin, it is alleged, knocked her down and kicked her and broks two of her ribs. She was carried into the house of a friend at No. 63 Meeker street, and a policeman took the impetuous anvil-maker to the station.

To-day when the case was called in the fliwer Street Court Miss Hogan fainted as she stood up to tastify. When she had recovered and told her story the Magistrate held Austin for trial.
